Mrs. Mondragon's Philosophy of Education
"Educating the mind without educating the heart is no education at all." -Aristotle

I believe the learning process should be engaging for all students. Therefore, it is essential for hands-on and applicable activities. Everything that I teach I try to make relevant to students' lives. I reflect daily on what I do, and I try to put myself in the chair of the student-asking myself, why does this matter? How is this relevant to me? It is my mission to show students that what I teach goes beyond the classroom and affects their everyday lives. By making these classroom-to-world connections, students will become global thinkers and problem solvers ready for the twenty-first century. In addition, teaching life skills and strategies are my top priority. By learning strategies, such as note-taking, organization and time-management, it is my hope that students not only are successful in my class, but in every subject and even in their personal lives. Last but certainly not least, each of my student's wellbeing is my number one concern. In order for my students to be academically successful, I understand that their social and emotional needs must also be met. I strive at providing a safe and secure learning environment where students can feel free to be themselves.

With the support of my fellow colleagues, parents and community, I know my students can truly succeed in their overall lives and become contributing members of society.

-Mrs. Mondragon

Class Mission & Goals
Students in room C106 will learn the lifelong skills that will equip them for the rest of their educational career and adult life. Skills emphasized this year include:

- 1) Responsibility/accountability
- 2) Cultural Relevancy/empathy
- 3) WICOR Strategies (writing, inquiry, collaboration, organization, and reading)
- 4) Citizenship

IT IS OUR CHOICES, HARRY THAT SHOW US WHO WE TRULY ARE, FAR MORE THAN OUR ABILITIES
